Philosophy of Ard Aoibhinn service

Ard Aoibhinn services strives to provide a holistic approach to service delivery, designed to meet the current and ever changing needs of each individual service user.

The organisation recognises the valuable contribution made by each and every service user and Staff member and is constantly working to ensure the Safety Health and Welfare of all who attend and work within the service. This is maintained through education, training and promoting safe practices at work.

As a staff team we aim to communicate by word and deed what it means to be a valued member of society. Where all persons are treated as equals and where their rights, dignity and welfare are upheld and respected.

Each staff member is committed to work as part of a team to help promote a warm, friendly, relaxed atmosphere for the service users and for all who work here.

The uniqueness of each individual must be celebrated and respected by all.
